That is of course, the Beverly Hills Supper Club disaster. I asked my news director Don North and my other boss Nick Clooney if I along with photographer/editor Brad Jones and our researcher Maria Picciano could put together a special to air on the same night and time of the that awful fire. They said of course and gave me whatever resources I needed to produce it. Thirty psychotherapies with survivors of a devastating supper club fire were studied. Treatments were judged in terms of level of completeness, traumatic symptomatology, therapist experience, and therapist sensitivity to the particular disaster influenced level of completion. Nodal points, such as engagement, dosage of affect, and management of transference are described, and case illustrations provided.
